Institutional ethnography ( IE) is an alternative approach of studying and understanding the social; it is an alternative sociology. IE explores the social relations that structure people's everyday lives, specifically by looking at the ways that people interact with one another in the context of social institutions (school, marriage, work, for example) and understanding how those interactions are institutionalized.

Institutional ethnography - Wikipedia

At a basic level, institutional ethnography is the study of the social organization of everyday life. What it does not do is objectify the subjects or people into objectifications of the everyday world that one is studying. The social ontology of institutional ethnography, its underlying fundamental, essential principle, is that the social is something that unites people's activities.
